Create a role-playing conversation with 3 roles where a student can practice their A1 English level speaking with each other. Include words they should mention in their conversation.

Role 1: Student

Role 2: Teacher

Role 3: Parent

Student: "Good morning, Mrs. Smith!"

Teacher: "Good morning, [student's name]! How can I help you today?"

Student: "I'm here to talk about my English grades. My parents are here too."

Teacher: "Excellent. Let's all sit down and discuss."

Parent: "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. We're here because [student's name] is struggling in their English course."

Teacher: "I understand. What specifically are they having trouble with? Is it writing, reading or something else?"

Parent: "It's mostly reading. [Student's name] doesn't seem to understand the concepts they are learning."

Student: "I have a hard time understanding the vocabulary in the books. I often get lost while reading."

Teacher: "That is a common struggle for students at the A1 level. One thing you can do is practice speaking with native-English speakers whenever possible. That can help you learn the words much more quickly."

Student: "Can I also practice reading more too? I want to get better."

Teacher: "Of course! There are a number of online resources and books that can help you improve your English reading skills. I'm happy to help you find the best resources for your level."
